

1 ABSTRACT

2 A system receives account access information from a user. The account is 3 then accessed using the received access information. Data is harvested from a web
4 page associated with the account or received from another financial data source.
5 The user's ability to access the account is authenticated based on the obtained
6 information.